

A call to action to protect God`s creation

If God wanted to punish us for our sins he would send a second Flood like in Noah`s time, not a flood of rising sea levels that will punish future generations, who have done nothing to spoil God`s creation, our Garden Eden, Earth, that we are destroying without sense or remorse as if God had given us his permission to despoil his work.

Pray for compassion with the world in which we live and for the future generations who have no choice but to live with the results of our sins.

Pray that we find a future that is not driven by black soot covering our hearts and minds, but by green shoots of hope that show that we care for God`s creation, that we understand that we have a responsibility for it.

Pray that we find the strength to change our ways so that we do less harm and the daring to use God`s greatest gift to us, our believe that we can improve ourselves and the world to the better.

Pray that we overcome differences that have kept us, the children of God, apart and stand up in the greatest challenge our generations have to bear, the rescue of all the living things around us.

There is hope in unity and the innate goodness of mankind. We are not evil if we don`t choose to be evil.

Let us unite to save the planet, to create a stable climate in which man and nature can prosper.

Join us in the establishment of a comprehensive global climate stability program.
